The Builders

Board members, seated: Ellis Haskell, Ada Weber Genter, clerk, Harold Schmucker, Pres. Russell Gasche, Vice-pres. Russell Schultz, Supt. S. M. Gottschalk, Earl Weber.

Faculty, standing: James A. Edington, Mrs. S.M. Gottschalk, Mrs. Florence Lindley, Mrs. Florence Porter, M a r k Ray, Mrs. Betty Rex, Doris Liechty, Margaret Buckmaster, Alta Spiess, Mrs. Mildred Rychener, Sadie Miller, Robert Rex, Ronald Pollock, Mrs. Jean Oyer, David E. Springer, Ruth K. Wyse.

Not unimportant in the process of building are the bus drivers. Without them there would be no raw materials in the form of students for the faculty to develop. They bring the students to school every day. On many occasions, however, several of the men teachers had to do double duty, both bringing in the raw materials and developing them.

The ground is broken

Just as the breaking of the ground is the first step in beginning a new building, so kindergarten is the first step in the group education of the child entering school.

Future carpenters begin their training in kindergarten. Holidays are also observed, as the picture of the Valentine party proves.

In the first grade, the first real school work is begun. This work forms the cornerstone upon which the rest of the child's school education is built. Children are introduced to the fundamentals of learning--readin', 'ritin', and 'rithmetic. They also learn to appreciate good stories, as is shown in the top picture where their teacher, Mrs. Lindley, is reading to them. In the bottom picture, amateur artists are expressing their personalities through clay modeling.

Last row: Glen Hartman, Janet Nafziger, Elaine Merrillat, Mary Lou Wanner, Ida Mae King.

After the cornerstone is laid in the first grade, the real work on the foundation is begun in the second grade. While learning to spell for the first time, the children add more basic material to the foundation of their building of learning. In the top picture, part of the class is watching their teacher explain some of the finer points of writing. The rest of the class, in the lower picture, looked up from their reading lesson when the photographer walked in the door.

Linda Lou Baer and Marlene Reynolds were absent.

The walls of the building of knowledge begin to rise in the third grade, based on the foundation which was laid in the earlier grades. The students' supply of building materials is enlarged and made even more interesting by the addition of new and different "bricks". The bricks of multiplication and division are introduced for the first time, as a preparation for later mathematics. In the third grade, for the first time, all written work is done in script and printing is a thing of the past.

Mrs. Rex has encouraged and developed the children's reading ability as is evidenced by the interest shown in the reading books in the top picture. In the bottom picture, the children are about ready to sing one of their songs for the photographers.

In the fourth grade, two new windows of learning are opened for the first time. Through these windows, the students can see and enter the exciting new worlds of history and geography. Through their project of selling seeds, the window to the business world is opened. In the top picture a reading lesson is in progress. Beams are one of the most essential parts of the structure of a building, forming the final supports. The fifth grade forms one of these final supports for future schooling.

projects was making history posters. A group of pupils is

When the sixth grade is completed, the student's building of learning has reached the half-way mark. A great deal has been accomplished since this class first entered school six years ago. The experiences of grade school life are past and can never again be repeated.

During the course of the year, the sixth graders spend much time working with fractions. Practice makes perfect, as you know! Decimals are also added for the first time to the supply of mathematical knowledge.

All, however, is not work. In the picture on this page, part of the class is busy making paper cut-work valentines under the competent direction of the teacher, Mrs. Rychener.

Partitions in a building serve the purpose of forming separate rooms. In the seventh grade the partitions form the dividing lines for the separate class groups. For the first time departmentalized work is instituted and the students go from room to room for their various classes.

Going from the sixth grade into the seventh requires a great deal of adjustment on the part of the student. This year's class of thirty-five seventh graders reacted in the typical manner of all seventh graders.

Neil Weber was elected as president of the class early in the year. The vice-president was Garold Beck, and Glenden Rupp was secretary. Mrs. Oyer sponsored the class. Paul Short withdrew from the class during the winter.

The floor is laid

Just as the floor forms a firm basis for the feet of those who pass over it, so the eighth grade forms the basis upon which the high school work is laid.

In September the civics class with Mr. Springer visited the Union Station in Toledo. The class showed enthusiasm by leading its team to victory in the March of Dimes contest. In April, the class took the eighth grade scholarship tests. As a result, Junior Beck placed first in the class, Judith Weber, second, and Mable Ann Rupp, third.

Howard Snyder was elected president of this rambunctious class of twenty-nine eighth graders. Leon Waidelich was vice-president, and Judy Weber was secretary-treasurer.

The class enjoyed a hayride which was held April 27. Before Shirley Short withdrew early in the spring, the class gave a farewell party in her honor. A Christmas party was also held.

A group of eighth grade boys is pictured below in the shop, which was formerly a part of the bus shed. Mr. Pollock, the class sponsor, is directing the activity.

The building takes shape

By the time the ninth grade is reached, the shape of each student's building of learning can be pretty well determined. In this first year of high school, the shaping up of the last four years is begun.

Last fall, on September 28, the sophomores did a good job of initiating these freshman "greenies," making them feel as foolish and excited as all freshman classes do.

After Jean Beck and Donald Burkholder quit school during the winter, the freshmen tied with the seniors for the honor of being the smallest class in school!

There were only sixteen new additions to the high school enrollment this year.

The class elected athletically minded Shari Weber as their president. Kenneth Miller was voted in as vice-president. The secretary of this comparatively quiet class is Margaret Rupp; Rachel Frey is the treasurer.

With the construction of the roof, a building is approaching its final stages. In the tenth grade, the students are approaching the final stages of their building of knowledge. Having progressed half-way through high school, they can see ahead toward the completion of the structure with its finishing touches.

Possibly the most outstanding event of the year was the opportunity to initiate the freshmen. The sophomore home economics girls cooked and served the dinner with which the faculty entertained the school board members and their wives at their March party. The sophomore boys seem to be quite interested in the FFA since six of them are active members.

To serve as leaders, this class chose Lowell Ayers as president, Marlin Beck as vice-president, and Claudette Rupp as secretary-treasurer. Miss Wyse sponsored the class.

During the winter months, Doris Beck withdrew from the class.

class as president. Curtis Spengler was vice-president, Edith Haskell, secretary, and Darold Riegsecker, treasurer.

To help meet expenses, the juniors sold sandwiches one-third of the year and candy the entire year. The candy business was a profitable one since each child in the entire school bought an average of $3.50 worth of candy during the year.

Another means of money-raising, and also enjoyment, was the junior class play. On January 25, the cast of "Ever Since Eve" was chosen by several teachers. The following people won roles: Rosetta Schrock, John Rychener, Dale Klopfenstein, Curtis Spengler, Edith Haskell, June Gilson, Glenda Frey, Ralph Gasche, Richard McBride, Marilyn Frey, James Waidelich, Ralph Bruner, Wesley Wyse, Gerald Nafziger, and Ervin Miller. When Rosetta broke her ankle, Shirley Nofziger took over her part.

This year proved to be a very busy one as thirty juniors, with Mr. Ray as their sponsor, approached the finishing stages of high school life. They were a very enthusiastic class, taking part in many activities such as choir, glee club, band, Pet Echoes staff, FFA, baseball, and basketball. At the beginning of the year, Dale Klopfenstein was chosen to lead this

The play, given April 6, was well accepted by a large audience of over 600 people. Since the juniors were handicapped by the lack of an auditorium at Pettisville, the production had to be given at the Wauseon Memorial Auditorium. Mr. Ray directed the production.

May 4 was a day of unusual activity for the juniors. On this day, they gave a beautiful banquet in honor of the senior class. It was built around a "Mother Goose Land" theme. However, the joy of the occasion was dimmed by the thought of the afternoon automobile accident, which injured three junior boys, Dale Klopfenstein, James Waidelich, and Wesley Wyse, who had been working on the banquet.

The juniors climaxed their year by ushering at the senior commencement activities.

The building is completed

As a part of their commercial course, these eight senior girls studied shorthand. Here they are shown as they practice taking dictation from their teacher, Mrs. Oyer.

Twice a week the chemistry laboratory was the center of activity for six members of the senior class. They all pulled through the course safely, despite a few minor accidents.

Dependable Arlene Back could always be counted on to do any job well. Arlene usually was silent as a sphinx and yet watchful as a cat.

Clarence Bruner was the most energetic boy in the class. He took an active part in the musical organizations. Corny jokes were Clarence's faithful standby.

The girl with the boundless pep and energy was Margie Burkholder. Margie's hobbies were giggling, talking, running around, and flirting with all the boys.

The boy whose term papers were always turned in late was Richard Gautsche. Much of his time was spent in FFA activities as president. Richard had a clever remark ready for any occasion.

Marilyn Gearig has the enviable combination of blond curly hair and blue eyes. This vivacious senior girl enjoyed singing as one of her pastimes. Marilyn was Mr. Springer's busy secretary.

Roger Gilson's tall lanky frame could be seen whenever a ball game of any sort was in progress. Because of his sportsmanship, both on the ball field and in the schoolroom, he was given the Babe Ruth award at the end of the year. Roger delighted in teasing the girls.

The shyest member of the senior class was Ruth Gisell. She was always prompt and conscientious. Ruth was Mr. Pollock's secretary during her senior year.

Lester King's perpetual cackle could be heard any time and anywhere during his school life. It's a wonder that the chemistry laboratory is still whole after all the "experimenting" "Simit" did there.

The tallest girl in the class was Anna Rose Meller. Her pleasant personality and smile won her many friends.

Fern Moll was usually quiet and nonchalant. Her fondness for eating, especially olives, got her into some unusual situations. Olive juice poured out of an upstairs window inevitably hits the fourth grade windows below. As a result, Fern became a window washer for a short while.

Anna Nofziger could be seen carrying home a big pile of books every night. Her ability to give orders made her a leader of the class.

The most studious individual in the class was Sarah Jane Robinson. An able leader, fun-loving, and always busy, Sarah never refused to do something for a friend. She was given both the citizenship and sportsmanship awards.

Another hard-working senior was Bernice Rupp. She studied hard, but could take time out for fun, too. Bernice collected scholastic certificates as some people collect souvenirs.

Rosa Waidelich will really go places if she works as much as she giggled. Her rosy cheeks aptly fit her nickname, "Rosie". Each morning she could be seen going from room to room, gathering the absence slips.

The senior girl with the ability for making speeches was Emogene Zimmerman. Although well prepared, she always complained of "unpreparedness". Emogene's hobby was either evading a study hall or sleeping through it.

A girl whose interests were in the commercial field was Martha May Zimmerman. Her motto could very well be, "Seen but not heard."

Senior history

Four years ago the class of 1951 entered high school and was initiated in the usual manner by the sophomores. These twenty-three freshmen elected Bernice Rupp as their president, Roger Gilson as vice-president, and Sarah Jane Robinson as secretary-treasurer. Mr. Ray sponsored the class. As a project, the home economics girls sold sandwiches. They used the profits to pay for more than half of the combination dishwasher-disposal and electric mixer purchased for use in the home economics department.

Sarah Jane Robinson was president during the sophomore year. Marilyn Gearig was vice-president, and Shirley Grime, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Ray again sponsored the class.

As an English project, the class gave the play "Evening Clothes" under the direction of Miss Wyse. All of the class was in the play. Margie Burkholder, Lester King, Sarah Jane Robinson, Roger Gilson, Anna Nofziger, and Bernice Rupp had the leading parts.

As president for the junior year, the class chose Lester King. The vice-president was Margie Burkholder, and the secretary-treasurer was Anna Nofziger. Miss Hostetler sponsored the class. One of the high spots in the year was the production of the play "Brother Goose" on April 20 and 21. Anna Nofziger and Roger Gilson played the leading roles. The play was directed by Mr. Ray.

The junior-senior trip to Columbus took place the latter part of April. Several institutions and radio and television studios were visited. On May 6, the class gave a banquet for the seniors and faculty members. The banquet was built around a southern theme. One third of the junior year was spent selling sandwiches, while candy was sold the entire year.

Lester King was elected president for the senior year. Sarah Jane Robinson was vice-president, and Anna Nofziger was secretary-treasurer. Sarah Jane Robinson served as president of the Student Council the past year. Lester King was vice-president and Bernice Rupp was secretary.

Early in the fall, the seniors gave their class play, "For Love and Money." Sarah Jane Robinson and Roger Gilson played the leading roles. Because of the lack of boys, John Rychener and Wesley Wyse of the junior class had parts in the play. The production was given in the Wauseon Memorial Auditorium because of the building project at Pettisville School, which occupied the entire year.

Bernice Rupp, Anna Nofziger, Sarah Jane Robinson, and Richard Gautsche took the senior scholarship tests in Wauseon. As a result of these tests, Bernice Rupp placed fourth in the county, Anna Nofziger was fifth, and Sarah Jane Robinson received honorable mention.

Because of the size of the junior class, the practice of an annual junior-senior trip was dropped. Instead, a senior trip was taken. Several institutions in Columbus were visited, and a tour of the Ohio State University campus was made.

As editor of the "Lariat" the class chose Bernice Rupp. Lester King was associate editor and Richard Gautsche, business manager. Anna Nofziger was in charge of writing the copy and the typing was under Fern Moll. The job of mounting the copy was done by Marilyn Gearig. Sarah Jane Robinson was the art editor. The entire class helped on the project. Mr. Pollock took most of the snapshots appearing in the book.

The class scholastic honors were awarded to Bernice Rupp and Anna Nofziger. Bernice was valedictorian and Anna was salutatorian.

All of the graduation exercises were held at the Memorial Auditorium in Wauseon. The baccalaureate service was held May 20. The sermon was given by Rev. Bertsche of the Archbold Evangelical Mennonite Church. May 22 was the date of the commencement exercises, at which Dr. Carl Kreider, acting president of Goshen College, Goshen, Indiana, spoke on "Earthquakes." The last event the seniors took part in was class night, May 24. A short playlet and the valedictory and salutatory addresses were given then.

The coveted citizenship award for the best school citizen was given to Sarah Jane Robinson, as a result of voting by the faculty and class presidents. The Babe Ruth sportsmanship awards, again presented this year, were given to Sarah Jane Robinson and Roger Gilson by vote of grades seven through twelve.

Building culture

Mr. Edington encouraged solo and ensemble work as a means to improve group participation. As a result of this encouragement, a clarinet quartet was formed consisting of Phyllis Schmucker, Ralph Bruner, Carol Vonier, and Delight Grieser. This group entered the solo and ensemble contest at Bowling Green and received an excellent rating.

A trumpet trio was also formed, composed of Shari Weber, Shirley Wanner, and Louise Schultz. This group also entered the contest. They were awarded an excellent rating for their number.

During the year an orchestra was formed. It consisted mostly of students from grades five through ten. The group played the processional, "Pomp and Circumstance," at Commencement with several other numbers. Considering the youth and inexperience of the group, they gave an excellent performance.

Third row: Shari Weber, Lowell Ayers, Arlene Schultz, Joyce Grieser, Shirley Wanner, Janette Gearig, Judith Weber.

Band

First row: Phyllis Schmucker, Ralph Bruner, Carol Vonier, Mr. Edington, Kathryn Krieger, Neil Weber, Hazel Ayers, Claudette Rupp, Sarah Jane Robinson.

Second row: Delight Grieser, Arlene Schultz, Betty Fowler, Lowell Schultz, John Gasche, Joyce Grieser, Louise Schultz, Shirley Wanner, James Waidelich, Shari Weber.

The band is an elective music group composed of students from grades six to twelve. Those who attended the spring concert were pleasantly surprised to hear a great improvement in the group since their appearance in a winter concert. This improvement brought the group a good rating at the district contest in Bowling Green. All of the judges agreed that the band showed great promise, considering the immaturity of the group. They were commended on their spirit, balance, and sincerity. Mr. Edington has done a superior job directing this organization.

Junior Beck played a violin solo at the district contest held May 31 in Bowling Green. He earned an excellent, or second, rating.

Shari Weber also entered the district contest. Her cornet solo won a very good, or third, rating.

Mixed Chorus

First row: Carol Vonier, Lois Friesen, Martha May Zimmerman, Joan Leupp, Marilyn Frey, Nancy Porter, Edith Haskell, Laura Jane Gearig, Phyllis Schmucker, Glenda Frey.

Second row: Mr. James Edington, Rosa Waidelich, Margie Burkholder, June Gilson, Anna Nofziger, Marilouise Miller, Phyllis Frey, Clemma Roth, Bernice Rupp, Marcile Rupp, Mary Alice Leupp, Elaine Rychener.

Third row: Erma King, Evelyn Short, Paul Wyse, Wesley Wyse, Curtis Spengler, Ralph Bruner, Merle Frey, Kenneth Miller, Eugene Richer, Arlene Beck, Marilyn Gearig.

Fourth row: Merrill Nofziger, Gerald Nofziger, Marlin Beck, Ervin Miller, Dale Klopfenstein, Marlin Miller, Roger Gilson, Richard McBride, Clarence Bruner, Lester King, Robert Yoder, David Sauder.

The mixed chorus climaxed its activities of the year by winning a superior, or first, rating at the state music finals, which were held April 28, at Springfield, Ohio. It was the only group in its class to win this rating. Previous to the event, the chorus participated, on April 7, in the district contest at Bowling Green, at which it also obtained a first rating. This organization is composed of a picked group of musicians.

Mr. Edington, the music instructor, was rated as a first-rate conductor by the judges at the district contest.

The girls glee club also entered the state contest after winning a first in the district. The group received an excellent, or second, rating at the state. Girls glee club is a musical organization open to all high school girls who wish to enter.

The music organizations of the school presented two concerts during the year, in which both the mixed chorus and the glee club participated.

First row: Joan Leupp, Shirley Nofziger, Marilyn Frey, Mr. James Edington, Claudette Rupp, Delight Grieser, Pauline Grieser, Betty Fowler.

Second row: Lavonne Gisel, Doris Rufenacht, Marilouise Miller, Rachel Frey, Nancy Porter, Mary Louise Rufenacht, Margaret Rupp, Marilyn Miller.

Third row: Marilyn Nofziger, Shirley Meyers, Jane Guerrero, Evelyn Short, Erma King, Hazel Ayers, Clemma Roth, Arlene Schultz, Marcile Rupp, Jueldine Nofziger, Norma Nofziger.

Roth, Marilyn Gearig, Laura Jane Gearig. Because Laura Jane was ill, Janette Gearig sang in her place.

First row: Lowell Ayers, James Waidelich, Clarence Bruner, Paul Grieser.

Second row: Mr. Pollock, James Davis, L. J. Burkholder, Lowell Meller, Ervin Miller, Colenzo Short.

Third row: Eugene Richer, Paul Wyse, Gerald Nafziger, Merrill Nofziger, Waldo Aeschliman, Glen Wyse. Absent: James Beck, Harlan Gearig.

Early in September, new FFA officers were elected for the 1950-51 fiscal year. They were Richard Gautsche, president; James Waidelich, vice-president; Waldo Aeschliman, secretary; Clarence Bruner, treasurer; Lowell Ayers and Merrill Nofziger, reporters; Paul Grieser, sentinel; R. H. Pollock, adviser.

The chapter was very active during the year. To raise money the group sold greeting cards, had scrap iron and paper drives, sold advertisements for a local FFA calendar, bought and resold the rough lumber used to support the roof of the auditorium during remodeling, and built and sold a hog house.

The boys defeated a neighboring chapter in a pest contest. Several groups entered district FFA contests.

The chapter purchased a gilt, to start a chain, at the annual sale held at the fair grounds. It bought ping-pong equipment and some table games. The chapter donated $25 to charity.

The FFA gave the home economics girls a party in the winter, which the girls returned in the spring.

FFA

One of the projects of the FFA was clearing the lot west of the bus shed. The boys were given the use of the ground on condition that they keep the weeds down. They planted the land to cane and corn. Roger Schmitz was given the responsibility of taking care of it during the summer. Part of the lot was formerly a peach orchard. In the upper picture, several of the boys are at work clearing the orchard.

A total of 2,743 pests, such as sparrows, starlings, pigeons, mice, and rats, was caught during the contest held in the spring. The lower picture was taken at the Oscar Gautsche home. The boys displaying their pests are Clarence Bruner, Ervin Miller, Lowell Meller, Gerald Nafziger, Colenzo Short, Richard Gautsche, and James Waidelich.

During the paper drive, also sponsored by the FFA, fifteen tons of scrap paper was collected. The boys received an average of twenty dollars a ton for their efforts. In the lower picture they are tying the paper into bundles previous to its being hauled to Toledo.

For the third consecutive year, Pet Echoes won the trophy for the best mimeographed newspaper in northwestern Ohio, at the Northwestern Ohio District Journalism Association convention held on May 3 at Bowling Green State University. Sarah Jane Robinson served as the student chairman of one of the discussion groups at the convention, with Miss Wyse as the faculty adviser.

The staff put in many hours on its regular project of publishing the paper every Tuesday afternoon. Besides producing the paper, the class also spent much time on workbooks.

At the beginning of the year the class numbered an even ten, but Mary Jo Miley moved to Indiana after the first semester, leaving nine members.

As an extra project, aside from their regular newspaper work, the journalism class undertook the job of redecorating their class room. A great deal of work was spent sanding and revarnishing the furniture and woodwork. A waffle supper, given April 26, highlighted the completion of this project.

The lower picture gives a view of activities during the refinishing project. All, however, was not work, as is evidenced by the ukulele.

Again this year, a number of students were chosen to serve as librarians. There is a great deal of work connected with running even a small school library. Much of this responsibility fell on Jueldine Nofziger, who was appointed head librarian. Among the many duties of the librarians, possibly the most important one is checking out books. They also were responsible for the neatness of the library. Delta state library books again expanded the amount of reading material available for the entire school.

Bookmenders too have a large role to play in keeping the library functioning. They did a good job of mending both grade school and high school books. Donnabelle Riegsecker, also a bookmender, was absent the day the picture was taken.

Student Council consists of members elected from grades 7-12. The group discussed school problems created by the building program. It bought games and sponsored clubs for noon activities.

The officers of the organization were Sarah Jane Robinson, president; Lester King, vice-president, and Bernice Rupp, secretary. Mr. Gottschalk is the adviser.

In order to gain their credit for typing 2, the senior girls spent a period each day working in the office or as secretary to one of the teachers. In the lower picture they are shown at various jobs with Mrs. Gottschalk, school secretary, as their supervisor.

Because the school building project made the usual noon activities impossible, clubs were formed to fill the void. A home economics club, sponsored by Miss Liechty, chose Marilouise Miller as president; Norma Nofziger, vice-president; and Rosa Waidelich, secretary-treasurer. The group decorated the school at Christmas.

A second active club was the art club with Miss Buckmaster as adviser. The membership fluctuated. Anna Nofziger was president, and Lester King, treasurer. Soap-sculpture, etching, and glass painting were the projects of the club.

Managers are a very essential factor of any ball team. Their job is to keep the equipment in good condition and see that it is taken to every game. Orval Sauder and Jim Rupp served as basketball managers. Jim Rupp also was the manager of the baseball team.

The cheerleaders lead the school yells at the pep meetings before each game and at the games themselves. They also belong to the booster committee.

This year the varsity was composed of six boys. Roger Gilson played center; Ralph Gasche, John Rychener, and Jim Waidelich, forward; Ralph Bruner and Paul Grieser, guard. During the season five games were won and 14 were lost. Although its record was not any better than last year, the team showed considerable improvement in play.

Since only one member of the squad is a senior, a good nucleus is left for next year. However, the senior center, Roger Gilson, will be very greatly missed, as he scored a large number of points with his hook and lay-up shots. Roger was also elected honorary captain by his teammates.

The reserve team was also composed of six boys. Mr. Rex coached both the varsity and reserve teams. At least one of the reserves will be advanced to the varsity next year, since the reserves are preparation for the more advanced standing of varsity.

Junior high cheerleaders: Judith Weber, Kathryn Krieger.

The booster committee this year was composed of four girls besides the cheerleaders, who automatically are boosters. For every basketball game, they made favors to give to each player. They sold refreshments at each home game.

The boosters sponsored a tobogganing party for the varsity and reserve squads at Pokagon State Park, Lake James, Indiana. An all-athletic banquet was also held at the Tedrow Methodist church.

On two occasions various groups of players, boosters, and coaches were entertained at feeds given by Mrs. Kenneth Grieser and Mrs. Edwin Spengler and by the W.H. Rycheners.

The baseball team had more balance than it had had in previous years. It was possible to shift players' positions successfully. The entire team, with the exception of the two seniors, will be back next year. With so many veteran players returning, the team's prospects are bright. Roger Gilson's pitching will be missed. Richard Gautsche is the other senior.

The leading hitters for the year were Roger Gilson, Marlin Beck, and L. J. Burkholder. Marlin Beck, by vote of the team, was elected honorary captain. Mr. Springer again coached the team.

Any boy who has won a letter in any high school sport is eligible to membership in the Lettermen's Association. Roger Gilson, the top athlete, won a total of letters of the ten available to him.

The intramural sports program was rather restricted this year because of the building program. However, a basketball tournament was held on the tennis court. The finals were played off in March at the Wauseon Memorial Auditorium. Refreshments were served by the grades that lost the March of Dimes contest. The above pictures were taken on that occasion. Winners were the junior girls and the senior boys.

There was also a softball league in the spring, but no tournament. During the late spring a ping-pong tournament was held which was open to all who wished to participate. Shari Weber won the girls' championship by defeating Bernice Rupp. Robert Yoder defeated Richard Gautsche in the boys' tournament, thus becoming champion. Bernice and Richard were declared runners-up.

Building through brain and brawn

In the making of any building, it is usually the actual construction that people think of, rather than the planning which has gone into the project. However, the work of those behind the scenes is just as important. Several years of hard work were spent planning the new addition to Pettisville High School before the actual building began.

Since the school board is the motivating force behind all school activities, their main interest during the year naturally was planning and supervising the building project.

The addition, which is nearing completion, will alleviate the crowded condition of the past few years. This condition was brought about by the gradual growth of the school. The addition is on the south side of the building. The remodeled and enlarged auditorium-gymnasium now contains the third largest gymnasium floor in the county.

One of the main features in the addition is the large cafeteria with its adjoining kitchen, which is located in the excavated section. Also in that section are athletic dressing rooms--much larger than the former ones.

Above the cafeteria is the music department. It contains soundproof rehearsal rooms which will prevent the sounds of music from floating all over the school building. There are also music storage rooms and an office for the music instructor.

The new stage is at the south end of the gymnasium. There are two stage dressing rooms just off the stage proper. These will make it much easier to produce plays in the future. Also included in the addition is an office for the physical education director, which will overlook the gymnasium.

At the southeast end of the addition the farm shop is located, in much larger quarters than the remodeled bus shed formerly afforded. The agriculture room remains unchanged.

While the administration's main interest has been the new building, the faculty as usual centered their interests on the students. Their job is building the characters of the boys and girls who come to school every day.

Kindergarten, where the children go for their first schooling, was again taught by Mrs. Florence Porter. After kindergarten, the children enter the first grade, which was taught by Mrs. Florence Lindley. The second and third grades were taught by Miss Margaret Buckmaster and Mrs. Betty Rex, respectively.

Miss Sadie Miller was the fourth grade teacher again this year. There were no new teachers in the elementary grades. Miss Alta Spiess has been teaching the fifth grade ever since the school began--for twenty-two years. The sixth grade teacher again was Mrs. Mildred Rychener.

There was only one new addition to the high school faculty. Miss Doris Liechty, a graduate of Pettisville, was the new home economics, general science, and girls' physical education teacher. All of the high school English classes were taught by Miss Ruth K. Wyse. She also taught journalism and a class in first-year French. Mrs. Jean Oyer taught the regular commercial courses, with the additions of seventh and eighth grade mathematics.

Mr. S. M. Gottschalk, filling his capacity as superintendent, kept school life running as smoothly as can be expected when there are 400 students involved. In addition, he taught chemistry and eighth grade science. The principal, Mr. David Springer again served as baseball coach. In addition to his duties in those capacities, he taught American democracy, speech, world history, and English 8. The senior play was under his direction.

Mr. Mark Ray taught most of the history courses, besides English 7 and civics. He also directed the junior play. All of the music classes, both grade and high school, were taught by Mr. James Edington. Private instrumental lessons were available under his direction.

Mr. Robert Rex continued as basketball coach this year. The classes he taught were science 7, geometry, biology, algebra, and all boys' physical education. The vocational-agriculture and shop classes were taught by Mr. Ronald Pollock.

Mrs. S. M. Gottschalk served for the second year as school secretary.

All work was done under the handicap of a building project and classes at the same time. In spite of all disruptions, school ended on schedule, May 29, 1951.

The task of cleaning up after the students was again done by Mr. William Lantz. Every evening Mrs. Lantz would come over and help him. No matter how big or how dirty the mess was, they uncomplainingly cleaned it up. The thoughtlessness of students often made their job larger than it should have been. Together they kept our school building and grounds the clean, attractive place that it was.
